Use of social insurance such as workers' accident compensation insurance or health insurance

In case the motor accident occurred while you were working or commuting to or from work, you may be able to receive benefits from workers' accident compensation insurance. Please consult your employer about applying for compensation under the worker's accident compensation insurance.

When the motor accident is not regarded as a workers' accident, you may use your health insurance.

The amount of benefits you can receive from social insurance such as workers' accident compensation insurance or health insurance is not payable under the government compensation plan.

* Workers' accident compensation insurance

A government insurance program that pays benefits to workers or their survivors if the insured worker suffers an injury, personal disability, or death in the course of his/her job or commuting.

All employers are required to enroll in the program.

* Health insurance

An insurance program that pays benefits to Japanese citizens who have received treatment at medical institutions.

Part of the expenses incurred are covered.

Foreign nationals who meet certain conditions (having residence qualification of 90 days or longer, for example) are also required to be enrolled.

What would you do if you become involved in a hit-and-run accident or an uninsured vehicle accident?

The Government Compensation Plan is a program to ultimately aid victims in a motor car accident.

“A hit-and-run accident” or “an uninsured vehicle accident” is not covered by compulsory automobile liability insurance under the Automobile Liability Security Act. The government compensation plan is a program under the Automobile Liability Security Act in which the government (Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism) pays damages in place of the driver at fault in case the victim of a hit-and-run accident or an uninsured vehicle accident cannot be fully covered by benefits* from social insurance, such as health insurance or workers’ accident compensation insurance, and compensation payment from the driver at fault (who is liable for damages).

• A “hit-and-run accident” refers to a case in which the driver who has caused the car accident leaves the scene in his/her vehicle without identifying himself/herself. This includes cases where the driver leaves the scene after running into a pedestrian as well as after a minor or major collision with another vehicle causing injury to the victim.

• An “uninsured vehicle accident” is a case where a driver causes an accident while operating a vehicle without compulsory automobile liability insurance coverage because the driver failed to conclude an effective compulsory automobile liability insurance contract for the vehicle or the term of the compulsory automobile liability insurance policy expired prior to the accident.
